EARNEST WORK FOR THE REPUBLI

Formed Nightly-Eloquent Speech by an Ohio Orator-The Island Mass Meeting-Something by Way of Contrast lorn Hope.

The Island Club held a public meeting ast night, which was very satisfactory to those having the good of the Republican cause at heart. A much larger crowd than had been expected was present, and istened with the closest attention to Col. at 11 o'clock. Poorman's clear and incisive analysis of the records of the two great parties in the past in the light of their bearing upon the past in the fight of their overlay policy of each in the future. Capt Hiram Young presided, and in opening the meeting he made some very happy remarks. He eloquently referred to the Republican party, which "kept step to the music of the Union," while the Democracy "danced to the strains of Dixie." Judge Cochran followed with some reminiscences of campaigning with Col. Poorman in Obio in former years, and in closing he alluded to the assassination of Lincoln, and the first receipt of the news by the Colonel and himself.

The Colonel opened his speech by saying he was glad the death of Lincoln head been referred to, for it demonstrated one important fact, that this Government rested upon no one man's shoulders. It went on uninterrupted after Lincoln's assassination. He referred to the careers of Hancock and Garfield, saying that the people had repeatedly said to the latter, "Thou thas been faithful over a few things, we will make thee ruler over many things. Come up higher." Hancock as a faithful soldier and an able general was entitled to respect. It was as neither of these he Love Feast on Monday night, as it is the Love Feast on Monday night, as it is the policy of each in the future. Capt Hiram

Come up higher." Hancock as a faith soldier and an able general was entitled respect. It was as neither of these was nominated, but as the promulgator Order No. 40, which virtually placed th Government of the Southern hands of the leaders of the rebellion When the South comes up to a Democratic Convention and demands the nomination Onvention and demands the nomination of a man to whom they can give the solid Southern vote they demonstrate that the old sectional issue is not dead. But their party is dead. The Republican party took a bankrupt country and made of it one of the grandest nations of the earth. Upon every issue the triumph of which was involved in the accomplishment of this sublime result the Democracy occupied the negative. They upheld slavery in the territories; they said there was no power to coerce a sovereign State; they said there was no power to make greenbacks a legal tender; they said it was unconstitutional to emancipate the slaves; they opposed every successive step in the

they opposed every successive step in the elevation of the freedmen; and they are elevation of the freedings; and they are now arrayed against every wise measure the Republicans propose.

No man is more fully informed upon the records of the two parties than Col. Poorman. He has at his command figures in regard to the tariff, the currency, and other vital subjects which are weighty and convincing, and we hope to hear him often on this side of the river in the com-

REPUBLICAN CLUB IN THE SIXTH WARD. A meeting was held last night in the United Engine House for the purpose of organizing a Garfield and Arthur club for the Sixth ward. Thirty-four members enrolled themselves. Charles Wilson was rolled themselves. Charles Wilson was chosen temporary chairman and James to Devinney secretary. Committees were appointed to draft a constitution and by-laws, to secure a hall, etc., and after some brief remarks appropriate to the occasion by T. J. Hugus, Esq., the Republican candidate for Prosecuting Attorney, the meeting adjourned till next Thursday night, when at the organization will be perfected and made permanent. A good feeling prevails in the lower end of the city, and it will snot be found wanting when in comes to the solid work of the campaign.

A club was also organized in Richie district last night, at the Eighth Ward Hose thuse. Wm. Coleman presided, and the meeting was very satisfactory in point of numbers, enthusiasm and disposition to work to win. George H. Parks, can-arp Contrast Drawn Between New York, August 5 .- At a Republica nner raising in this vicinity yesterday George William Curtis was a speaker.

After a pleasant greeting to his neighors, he said the approaching election was question between parties. It had been however, a question between men, ther yould have been no difficulty in choosing between the trained statesman and the between the trained statesman and the veteran soldier. It was said, also, by many Democrats that, in any event, the election of Hancock would not be the ruin of the country. But in selecting a President it was the duty of patriotic citizens not merely to avoid the ruin of the nation, but to preserve it from all dangers.

After reviewing the benefits that had been given to the country by the Republican party since its organization, Mr. Curtis continued:

lican party since its or ganization, Mr. Curtis continued:

I have no doubt the people will say we desire the domination of that party which has brought renewed prosperity to the country. Will say Democrat tell me on what grounds he bases his hopes for the success of the Democratic party? Perhaps he is like an old Tory in England, who once said: "I haven't seen any fine weather in England since we have been out of power." I will not say that the demand in Europe for our grain and wheat is the result of the Republican party having been in power for twenty years, but I will say that the confidence and content everywhere evident among the people are conclusive vidence of their faith in that party which will not allow a swindling are conclusive evidence of their faith in that party which will not allow a swindling dollar in its currency, and which extends its protecting hand over the lowliest citizen. Senator Bayard, in his recent speech, said, substantially, two things—that the Republican party was not the party of the Constitution, and it was the party of the Constitution, and it was the party of hate. Henry Watterson, in writing lately to Tammany Hall, said that the Republican party was a party of hate, while General Hancock says, in his letter of acceptance, that the war is over and that this is an era of conciliation. What obstracts conciliation in this country? Is it the demand of the Republican party for equal rights, which is all it demands? Or is it the wish of the Democratic party to make this a write man's government?

Mr. Bayard save also that the party i not the party of the Constitution, that i prefers force to law. When and where it preferred force when the very Constitu tion was assalled, during the war. Who then rose to dispute the result of a legal election, Republicans or Democrats? Long efore the election of President Lincoln the Democratic party approved measures the Democratic party approved measures which made seession possible.

A peaceful conflict of this kind is always a latent danger in our government. There must be a final power to decide in such conflicts. In no platform and in no speech has the Democratic party intimated what its course would be when this conflict should arise. The people of the Northwest and of New England, Mr. Bayard knows, are just as patriotic and law abiding citizens as the bowie knife carrying people of Mississippi. If there is a dividing line between law abiding citizens and those who are the reverse, that line is that which separates the North from the South. The Republican party says that in all such conflicts the decision shall be given by the Judiciary of the country. Mr. Curtis then discussed the wish

General Hangock for a free vote and fair count. When he said that if the wish was sincere he would ask General Hancock to vote for the Republican candidate, he was vote for the Republican candidate, he was greated with great applause and laughter. He closed the address by a sketch of the life of General Garfield, who, he said, was a true representative of Republican principles.
